MCCARTER ANNOUNCES A SUCCESSION PLAN FOR THE DEPARTURE OF MANAGING DIRECTOR, MICHAEL ROSENBERG

PRINCETON, NJ— Last week, at its first Board of Trustees meeting for the season, The McCarter Board gave Michael Rosenberg a champagne toast and wished him well as he prepares to depart to lead New York City Center later this month.

“It has been an honor and a privilege to work at this institution during this unprecedented time in American theatre,” said Rosenberg. “I have loved working alongside Sarah Rasmussen as Artistic Director. Her work is incredible, and I have no doubt she will lead McCarter to wonderful new heights in the years ahead.”

McCarter has hired veteran arts and culture management consultants to identify an Interim Managing Director for the theatre which will be followed by a search to fill the role permanently.

“We are confident we can find an incredible new leader to join the team and take the reins at McCarter swiftly. Once we do, we look forward to introducing the new person to the community”, Calhoun stated.

In the meantime, Artistic Director, Sarah Rasmussen, will oversee the staff and operations. “We have a strong team in place, and we have wonderful shows to share this season. We hope the community will continue to come to McCarter and enjoy all we have to offer.”

The Wolves is currently running at McCarter now through October 16th and A Christmas Carol will be back this holiday season. For more on all McCarter has planned visit McCarter.org.
